Reclaim password design

When a user forgets their password, we have a rather simple procedure. When signing in you will be able to see a link underneath the sign In that says "forgot password?". If the user has indeed forgotten their password they can choose to get an email send to the email address that's tied to their account. In this email the user will get a link where they can choose a new password.